Many cases are reported in which families were obliged to "camp" together. One having no wood, another having no provisions, and another lacking something else; whilst each furnished a portion of the general meal.

One young man had just donned a pair of immaculate pantaloous, elegant new gaiters, and the rest to match. He was caught in the storm. Need we say more? No, we will spare his feelings.

Altogether the twenty-second day of August, 1873, will long be remembered in Pioche. May we never have another like it. H. M. BARNES, Notary Public, and Commissioner of Deeds for California and Utah. The sky began to darken, and it was necestary began to darken. sky began to darken, and it was neces-ton was innocent of any crime; had acted in self-defense, and that the sky began to darken, and it was necessary to use lamps and candles in houses. People walking on the streets began to hurry their footsteps, teamsters put their horses to full speed, and horsement appared on their steeds to obtain a place of shelter. Doors and windows were closed, as a protection from the coming storm, and everything betokened a general uneasiness and hurry. First came a few exceedingly large drops of rain, mingled with hail, which melted as soon as it touched the ground. Gradually the rain fell faster and faster, till in a few minutes the air was so filled with it that one could scarcely see farther than 200 yards. On Main street there was at first a small stream probably two or three inches deep and a foot and a half wide. This stream increased in size gradually, until in about ten minutes the whole width of the street was covered with a madly-rushing torrent of water. Hundreds of persons fined the sidewalks until the rising river forced them back into the shops, stores and saloons. Though no clouds could be seen, the lightning fashed in the sky almost every moment, and the quickly following, loud crashing and rolling of a fine complacency; the audience was evidence was evidence was evidence where was no allusion to the weeping of angels, or to the exemplary character of the accensed—this lackless by almost every moment, and the quickly following, loud crashing and rolling of a fine Christian graces; that saloons. Though no clouds could be seen, the lightning flashed in the sky almost every moment, and the quickly following, loud crashing and rolling of the thunder told how near to us were the discharges. Cobblestones, bowlders, fragments of rock, old boots and shoes, large and small dry goods boxes, barrels, planks and scantlings, and whatever animals had chanced to get into the stream, were borne down at an almost incredible rate of speed. Every available hand sweeping the water and hoeing and shoveling the mud from houses and sidewatks, but the task was as avain as that of Mrs. Partington in a somewhat similar undertaking. Cellars were filled, and the floors of houses were covered with from two to eighteen inches of water, mud and stones.

ACCIDENTS AND INCIDENTS.

WE have received a circular from the proprietors of the Utah Mining Gazette, which is to be issued about the 30th inst. The new enterprise is a lofty one, and the projectors have a fine field in

The damage is almost commensurate with its cause. Among the few who have given us rough estimates of their losses are Ashim & Bros., dry goods and general merchandise, $4,000 to $5,000; A. Flynn, boots and shoes, $2,500; M. Wilcox, boots and shoes, $1,500 to $2,000; Colman & Tyler, Capitol Saloon (cellar broken in), $1,200; H. Frendenthal, bakery, $500.

This would make a total, in round numbers, of $10,000 lost to business men alone. But this does not at all give an adequate idea of the damage. Chinatown seemed to be almost ready to float away. On the lower side of Main street the water passed through the Chinese dens from front doors to back, and corrals and hogpens were burst through. DELINQUENT SUBSCRIBERS are hereby notified that the carrier of the RECORD will, after the 8th of September, 1873, enforce strictly his rule requiring a setmen alone. But this does not at all give an adequate idea of the damage. Chinatown seemed to be almost ready to float away. On the lower side of Main street the water passed through the Chinese dens from front doors to back, and corrals and hoppens were burst through and the fences carried off. Many of the residences on McCannon street, on Meadow Valley street, and all the smaler streets back of it on the side of Spring Mountain, on Davis street, and other localities, were also flooded. Water, mud, and gravel flowed into them, over carpets and furniture destroying furs, silks, etc., to an amount probably greater than that lost by business men. Kitchens being flooded, and provisions being destroyed, a greater number than usual were obliged to go to restaurants for dinner. But here again was a difficulty. Many of the restaurants had also been tlement at least once a month. He is

A GOOD CHANCE.-H. Solis offers his stock and business stand for sale. His rous were sent away duneriess.

Accidents and incidents.

Whilst the stream down Main street was deepeat and swiftest, a wooden wash tub was borne rapidly down past the long lines of spectators, who cheered it on its way. Shortly after, another vessel, used for the same purpose, but made of tin, was seen "careering o'er the wave" near Cronan's store. The whilom bearer of this one, a "heathen Chinee," followed his property. His legs were taken from under him by the force of the current, and he was soon floundering in the water. He was rolled over and over; and at times was completely covered, so that several thinking his life in danger started to save him. At last, however, he reached the sidewalk, and—best of all—he had his tub.

When the storm was at its hight, two Indians were seen standing statue-like upon the rocky peak of the high hill to the east of Lower Main street, seeming to be in the midst of the lightning that was continually lighting up the heavens. location is one of the best in the city, and whoever has money to invest will find a good opportunity by calling on Mr. Solis at his stand on Main street, a few doors aboue the State Bank.
